

Meghan Price Scholarship for Leadership and Public Service

☞ THE AWARD ☞

An alumna of the Public Leadership College Park Scholars program, Meghan Elizabeth Price embodied the qualities of leadership, dedication, and community involvement. Meghan's life was cut short by a tragic accident in 1998. At the time, she was a senior at the University of Maryland majoring in government and politics and enrolled in its departmental honors program; Meghan was pursuing a concentration in Leadership Studies. On campus, Meghan was president of the Student Government Association (SGA), one of the largest student governments in the nation. As president, Meghan served as the voice for 24,000 undergraduate students, advocating for positive change on their behalf.

Established in 1999 by the family and friends of Meghan Price, The Meghan Price Scholarship Award for Leadership and Public Service—a scholarship of up to $2,000—honors her legacy and promise, and provides a permanent tribute to Meghan's life, leadership, and accomplishments.

Nominations may be made by any member of the College Park Scholars community, including faculty, staff, instructors, Resident Life officials, and students. Self-nominations are encouraged.

The scholarship will be applied to the recipient's student account.
